COMMITTEE VOTES TO ABROGATE TWO-THIRDS RULE AND NOMINATE BY MAJORITY IF DEADLOCK LOOMS

CHEERING LASTS
FIFTEEN MINUTES

Only Difference on Prohibition Now Appears How
Wet Party Platform
Should Be.

By THOMAS L. STOKES.

CHICAGO, June 27.—(U.P.)—It was not the republicans "mistakes" of which Keynote Barkley spoke nor even his prediction that the party's nominee would sit in the White House after next March 4 that set off a rousing jamore at the opening session of the democratic national convention today.

It was the Kentucky senator's recommendation that the people be allowed to pass "in unequivocal" terms upon repeal of the 18th amendment, a suggestion that had roused enthusiastic cheers when made previously by two other convention speakers, Chairman John J. Raskob, of the national committee, and Mayor Anton Cermak, of Chicago.

This was one issue—in a convention of strife and bitterness—which seemed to find general agreement and the democrats proceeded to show how happy they can be when they agree. The well-filled galleries enjoyed it.

The demonstration lasted 15 minutes. Delegates roared about to the tune of "How Dry I Am." Some southern drays, balked, even then, Kansas, Nebraska, Arkansas, Colorado, North Carolina and Virginia refused to join the "wet" parade.

There is still a difference on prohibition in this convention—whether the platform should be dry, but how wet it should be. This was manifest in the morning when the Smith element in the resolutions committee, led by Senator David I. Walsh, of Massachusetts, announced they would carry to the floor a fight for an outright repeal declaration and an immediate modification of the Volstead act. Roosevelt supporters as far as to recommend the repeal or repeal to state conventions.

Roosevelt Was Good Enough When Drafted for Governor

BY MARK SULLIVAN.

CHICAGO, June 27.—The only answer—said it is a slim one—of Roosevelt being defeated lies in Smith of the allied opponents taking dramatic advantage of some opportunity in the convention. That is the only plan, if it can be called a plan, that the opposition has. The position has no program, no candidate and no real organization. They think that at some point in the convention the Roosevelt forces will make a mistake and that Smith will take advantage of it to overwhelm Roosevelt. That the Roosevelt forces will make a mistake is not an unreasonable probability. They have a tendency to hasty judgment and excited action such as disturbs some of the moderate Roosevelt followers.

STRAIGHT REPEAL WILL BE SOUGHT BY ELEVEN STATES

Walsh Claims Near Majority for Plank as Plaform Makers Push Work on Complete Draft.

By LYLE C. WILSON.

CHICAGO, June 27.—(U.P.)—Democratic leaders of eleven states tonight in a repeal plank which they hope will push through the national convention resolutions committee.

If that effort fails, the fight will be carried to the floor of the democratic national convention, Senator David Walsh, of Massachusetts, who called the conference, announced.

Walsh described the plank as demanding repeal of the 18th amendment, and immediate modification of the Volstead act. It will be presented to the resolutions subcommittee tomorrow.

Delegations named by Walsh as favoring repeal aggregated more than 500 votes. A majority is 378 votes.

All members of the resolutions committee attending the conference concurred in the repeal plank, Walsh declared. He said he believed the proposed plank would have the support of "at least half" of the states.

"If a plank less wet than the one we propose is adopted by the platform committee," Walsh said, "we will carry our fight for this plank to the floor of the convention."

Walsh indicated he probably would lead the convention floor battle if it materializes.

Based on Igoe Proposal.

The proposed plank was modeled from one submitted to the resolutions committee last Saturday by Michael Igoe of the Illinois delegation. Walsh said that a few minor revisions would be made in its wording, and that it would be made known tomorrow.

Walsh and his associates joined with Walsh in the proposed plank were Connecticut, Illinois, Maryland, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Rhode Island, Michigan, New Jersey, Wisconsin and New York.

After a conference with leaders of several other state delegations, Walsh announced he had found sentiment for pledging the party to repeal "much stronger than we previously had expected."

Among state delegations which he said he found favoring the repeal plank were New Hampshire, Vermont, Colorado, Canal Zone, Florida, Iowa and Louisiana.

Walsh alluded to his previous announcement to point out that the proposed plank would include four points: 1. Repeal of the eighteenth amendment; 2. Submission of such repeal to state conventions; 3. Immediate modification of the Volstead act; 4. Pledging of the party to pre-

GERMANY IS FIRM ON CANCELLATION OF REPARATIONS

Berlin Makes It Clear
France Can Expect No
More Payments of War
Obligations.

By MELVIN K. WHITELEATHER.

LAUSANNE, Switzerland, June 27.—(U.P.)—Germany categorically informed France today that reparations must be canceled.

This declaration, deadlocking the Lausanne conference, came from Count Lutz Schwerin Von Krosigk, German minister of finance, at a critical meeting attended only by representatives of the two governments.

Germany, the finance minister said, was determined not to yield an inch in enforcing the policy of no more reparations.

This firm attitude was believed to have resulted from cabinet conferences held by Chancellor Franz von Papen in Berlin over the week-end.

Even before the finance minister informed the French that there would be no yielding, news got about Lausanne that both Germans and French were considering shelving the conference until next fall.

Back of this proposal was the fear that the French people would not permit their negotiators to surrender anything in order to effect a compromise, and that the German people would be similarly adamant.

Both Premier Edouard Herriot, of France, and Chancellor Von Papen were credited with desiring to reach an agreement with minimum delay. The premier also went home for week-end conferences with his cabinet. In Paris he found no sentiment for dropping the French demand that Germany continue reparations.

In his talk with the French today, Finance Minister Von Krosigk suggested that a way out of the deadlock might be found through the creation of a common cash box into which Germany would pay sums when she was financially able.

Curtis Knew Kidnapers, State Charges in Trial

Lindbergh Is First Witness As Prosecution
Reverses Hoax Theory in Effort To Prove Obstruction of Justice.

By WILLIAM A. KINNEY.

FLEMINGTON, N. J., June 27.—(U.P.)—Sweeping into action with swift stride against John Hughes Curtis, the prosecution in his trial for obstructing justice, but Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh on the stand late today, after outlining a brief case against the Norfolk boat builder.

The famous aviator took the stand after Prosecutor Anthony M. Hawk, in his opening argument, had told the jury that the boat builder had been in actual contact with the kidnapers and knew where they were when the child's body was found.

Speaking in calm, even tones, the flyer told of the fantastic dealings Curtis said he had with a desperate kidnapping band; of midnight meetings, journeys to the waterfront, and threatening demands relayed by Curtis that the kidnapers might "sell the baby to the highest bidder" among gangsters.

The Lindbergh recital seemed pointed toward proving the prosecution contention, outlined in a brief statement of the case, that Curtis, instead of "imagining" all the dealings with supposed kidnaper intermediaries, was in actual "contact" with them.

There was no official explanation of the prosecution's surprise strategy beyond the bare announcement of its purpose. It was pointed out, however, that since Curtis had repudiated his confession the state would be in a position to counter with the claim that the confession really was immaterial.

Too, it was regarded as easier to prove that justice had been obstructed if his negotiations with the actual kidnapers rather than mythical figures.

The prosecution seemed determined to give the jury a picture of a man so unreliable that regardless of the true circumstances the time spent in giving attention to his futile activities was a great waste in solving the mystery.

Curtis even pointed out a kidnaper called "Dynamite" in Newark, N. J., the youthful prosecutor, Anthony M. Hawk Jr., declared, adding the state would probe "beyond reasonable doubt" the boat builder was in actual "contact" with the kidnapers.

The testimony proceeded to an oblique of objections from defense attorneys, blocked earlier on several motions to halt or delay prosecution. Repeatedly they claimed their client was being persecuted, not prosecuted.

Judge Adam O. Robbins overruled most of the objections, though occasionally a question was withdrawn.

The crowd, which had craned and steamed in the sultry courtroom during a tedious day of arguments, recesses, and examination of jurors, sat in strained silence as the story was unfolded.

After consulting a small leather notebook, Colonel Lindbergh said he first met Curtis, with Rear Admiral Guy H. Burrage, retired, and the Very Rev. H. Donson Teacock, about the middle of March. The boat builder told of being approached by a man who claimed he could effect return of the baby.

"Mr. Curtis wanted to know what amount I would be willing to pay," the Colonel said.

Lindbergh replied, he went on, he would not discuss ransom until he was satisfied the persons with whom he dealt had the baby.

Curtis later told him the kidnapers wanted $25,000 in a Norfolk bank as "earnest money."

Even after a futile $50,000 ransom was paid through another intermediary, Dr. John F. (Jasie) Condon, Curtis insisted he was in touch with the kidnapers.

Supporting this Curtis told how he had been shown and had checked several of the bills paid by Dr. Condon in a Bronx cemetery, to a man known as "John."

The colonel described a trip made by himself, Lieutenant George L. Richard, U. S. N., and Edmund R. Bruce, friend of Curtis from Elmira, N. Y., to meet Curtis at midnight at Cape May, N. J.

Curtis said he had talked with the gang, and they had asked if Lindbergh would withdraw publication of the list of ransom bills. The boat builder also related, the witness said, that the "John" of the gang, its "most dangerous criminal," had threatened to sell the baby to the highest bidder among gangsters.

Colonel Lindbergh said Curtis took credit for having dissuaded "John" from this plan.

COMPROMISE NEAR AS SOLONS CONFER ON JOBLESS AID

Congress Rolls Up Sleeves
To Tackle Single Major
Barrier to Summer's Adjournment.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—(U.P.)—Indications of a compromise on the $2,500,000,000 unemployment relief bill came from house and senate conferees today, as congress speeded action on the big governmental appropriation measures.

With all plans for congressional adjournment hanging on the outcome of their negotiations, representatives of the house and senate worked in their shirt sleeves all day long toward an agreement on the jobless aid measures passed by the two branches.

They reported that no final decision had been reached but there was evidence of progress and some of it toward President Hoover's views.

Speaker Garner threw precedent to the winds by appearing personally before the conferees to urge his bill which the house approved.

Meanwhile, the house passed and sent to the president the District of Columbia appropriation bill, the second of the ten annual supply measures which must be placed on the statute books by Thursday night, the end of this fiscal year.

With the deadline fast approaching, the senate turned its attention to the huge billion dollar measure carrying funds for the independent offices, and quickly ran into a dispute over the appropriation for making railroad valuations under the recapture clause of the transportation act.

The upshot of the controversy was rejection of the appropriation committee's recommendation that the interstate commerce commission's fund for valuation be cut to $750,000. The senate voted to retain the house figure of $2,750,000.

Little progress was made on the national economy bill, which its sponsors hope will become law before the new fiscal year begins. Chairman Jones, of the senate appropriations committee, opened the way for an adjustment for entering a motion to reject the bill.

The governor's statement came soon after word had been received from Albany that Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt had asked his supporters to cease efforts to abrogate the two-thirds rule.

"Georgia is bound by instruction and must keep faith if the majority rule is placed before the convention," said Governor Russell. "However, we will not propose it of our own accord."

Judge W. L. Grayson, delegate-at-large, of Savannah, took the Georgia state standard into the great parade which followed reference to the repeal of the eighteenth amendment, made by

THOMAS J. WALSH ENDORSED TO FILL CHAIRMAN'S POST

Montanan Chosen Over Jouett Shouse by Permanent Organization
Committee in Chicago.

CONGRESS HOTEL, CHICAGO,

June 27.—(U.P.)—The committee on permanent organization of the democratic national convention tonight endorsed Senator Thomas J. Walsh, of Montana, for permanent chairman by a vote of 26 to 12. Walsh won over Jouett Shouse, who had been slated for the post.

It was reported that a minority report would be made, endorsing Shouse, thus taking the fight over the chairmanship to the convention floor. The battle for possession of the post has been linked with pre-convention maneuvers with the struggle of the Roosevelt forces to force through abrogation of the two-thirds rule and is a phase of the struggle between the New York governor's camp and the "stop-Roosevelt" movement.

The others on the permanent officers suggested by the subcommittee were unanimously endorsed. They were:

Sergeant-at-arms, Edwin A. Halsey, Virginia; secretary, Robert Jackson, New Hampshire; executive secretary, Ewing Laporte, Pennsylvania; parliamentarian, Clarence Cannon, Missouri; chief tally clerk, Kenneth Lounsbury, Massachusetts; chief clerk, S. Lamar Gill, Texas; E. G. Sherill, North Carolina; Maurice J. Freeman, New York; and Arthur J. O'Keefe, Massachusetts.

Chief reading clerk, P. F. Heltigan, Washington, D. C.; reading clerk, Emory L. Frazier, Kentucky; chief doorkeeper, Joseph J. Simon, Washington, D. C.; official reporters, Bona Fide Reporting Company, Chicago.

New York state's caucus later at night overwhelmingly to support Shouse.

The vote was 67 to 28 1-2, and came on a motion to support Shouse for permanent chairman, tally clerk.

It followed a spirited plea by Smith, who said he has no personal objections to Walsh.

Smith expressed regret that there was division within the delegation and that it must be eliminated if the party is to be successful this fall. He paid a tribute to Chairman Raskob, but said that he "leaned too

Writing Platform After Nomination Is Adopted
Without Debate and No Reason Ascribed.

By FRANCIS A. JAMIESON.

CHICAGO, June 27.—(U.P.)—With two rapid, history-making votes, the democratic rules committee tonight proposed to abandon the traditional two-thirds rule and to select the presidential and vice presidential candidates before adopting the platform.

In discarding the two-thirds rule, the Roosevelt-dominated committee adopted a plan for presentation to the convention tomorrow under which if the first six ballots fail to produce a two-thirds majority for any candidate, the party would be permitted to choose its presidential nominee by a majority vote.

The first is designed to prevent the balloting for the presidential nomination to deadlock the convention. In the debate that preceded the adoption of the second, no reason was brought out for the change.

Both proposals came from the Roosevelt camp and were opposed by the forces that are contesting its nomination for the presidency. In the debate against both of them, Allee Pomerene, the former senator from Ohio, was one of the most vigorous opponents.

Both proposals will go almost immediately into a fight on the convention floor. Immediately after the tentative planks had been adopted, dissenting factions on the committee assembled and drew up resolutions which they will present to the delegates tomorrow with demands for their adoption.

Howell Leads Fight.

Clark Howell, Atlanta Constitution publisher, led the fight to abrogate the two-thirds rule.

Georgia's plea in behalf of adoption of the majority rule was urged before the rules committee tonight by Howell.

"Let's get our history straight," said Howell, replying to speakers who contended that the two-thirds rule was adopted more than a hundred years ago and was the doctrine of Andrew Jackson.

Pointed Paragraphs From Keynote Speech

CHICAGO, June 27.—(AP)—Here are some pointed passages from the keynote address of the democratic national convention, delivered today by Senator Alben W. Barkley, of Kentucky:

"This convention should recommend the passage by congress of a resolution repealing the eighteenth amendment and its submission to the people of the states through conventions."

"No fair man or woman wishes to be unjust to Mr. Hoover or his administration. . . . But that the Hoover administration and the policies it has pursued have largely contributed to the disaster which has overtaken ours and the world's affairs no intelligent observer can dispute."

"Since the beginning of 1921, which covers the period of complete republican control, we have had more than 9,800 bank failures, involving deposits of more than $4,600,000,000. While for eight years under Woodrow Wilson only 499 banks closed their doors, involving deposits of only $165,000,000."

"(It the Hoover administration) proclaimed its generosity to the American farmer by proposing to create a farm board and give it $500,000,000 with which to 'stabilize' him and his products. The law was passed. The farm board was appointed. It proceeded forthwith to stabilize the farmer's products. It stabilized wheat from $1.25 per bushel down to 30 cents, corn from 75 cents per bushel down to 20 cents, cotton from 15 cents per pound down to 5 cents, wool from 20 cents per pound down to 7 cents, and every other agricultural product which it touched was stabilized in the same direction."

CHICAGO, June 27.—(U.P.)—Instructed by state convention to fight for the majority instead of the two-thirds rule, the Georgia delegation to the national democratic convention will follow its pledge if the matter is brought up on the convention floor, Governor Richard B. Russell Jr. said today.

The governor's statement came soon after word had been received from Albany that Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt had asked his supporters to cease efforts to abrogate the two-thirds rule.

"Georgia is bound by instruction and must keep faith if the majority rule is placed before the convention," said Governor Russell. "However, we will not propose it of our own accord."

Judge W. L. Grayson, delegate-at-large, of Savannah, took the Georgia state standard into the great parade which followed reference to the repeal of the eighteenth amendment, made by Alben W. Barkley, senator from Kentucky, and keynote speaker. The Savannah delegation, the way at the Georgia standard bobbed in the midst of the concourse parading about the convention floor.

Clark Howell, Atlanta publisher and delegate-at-large, commenting on the Roosevelt majority rule decision, said he thought the New York governor had "made a mistake."

Georgia women have a prominent place on the delegation.

Four years ago the women were leaders in the Georgia delegation which backed United States Senator Walter F. George, or the nomination from the first to the last ballot. This year they are equally as enthusiastic in the cause of Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt to head the democratic hosts in November.

This will be the third convention to which Miss Emma Woodward, editor of the Vienna News, has been a Farm Aid Revolt.

Threats of a farm rebellion against the platform makers led to brief, angry scenes outside the committee room. Representatives of the three principal farm organizations had waited vainly outside the door for an opportunity to appear before the committee. "I am insulted," exclaimed John A. Simpson, president of the Farmers' Union.

Senator Hull, democrat, Tennessee, a member of the drafting committee, bore the brunt of the farmers' discontent.

"Well," said Edward A. O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, "we may have to issue a statement."

"I am sure we can straighten it out," Hull said, and walked away with the farm representatives still in an angry huddle.

"What we want," Simpson explained, "is to give the farmers an opportunity to present their programs."

Relief Plan Offered.
O'Neal made public an agricultural relief program drafted from the democrats. It provides:

1. Emergency legislation to dispose of accumulated surpluses.
2. Permanent organization of farm-owned and controlled crop distributing agencies.

3. Equal tariff opportunities for agriculture.
4. Reform of the monetary system to restore general commodity price levels to those prevailing when the average of long term private and public debts were contracted.

5. An improved rural credit system.
6. A definite pledge to reduce costs of government.

After a two-hour session of the full resolutions committee, Senator Gilbert M. Hitchcock, chairman, announced he expected the platform would be completed tomorrow evening.

The platform drafting committee agreed on a tentative unemployment plank providing:

1. Federal loans to states not able to obtain funds elsewhere.
2. Construction works in the public interest.

Senator Carter Glass, of Virginia, said he still believed the platform would be less than 2,000 words.

The committee will reconvene tomorrow at 10 a. m.

called for this purpose, but are thumbs down on any tampering, meanwhile, with the Volstead act. Raskob appealed to the delegates to insist upon a platform plank pledging members of congress to submit to state conventions the question of repeal of the 18th amendment and to resist in the federal government full powers to protect states which want to remain dry.

The people, Raskob said, should be given an opportunity to vote on this question "which is of greater economic importance than any before the country today." He denounced the plank adopted by republicans recently as "intellectually dishonest."

Smith mildly cheered.

It was during the spontaneous outburst over Raskob's plea for a change that Smith entered the hall. He came down the main aisle, at first unnoticed. Then someone spied him and a cry of "Hey, Al!" stirred up a mild ovation that demonstrated what power the 1928 candidate still wielded.

Smith, sitting down front with the New York delegation, turned about, frequently, to chat in a lively manner with Mayor James J. Walker, of New York, and John F. Curry, the solemn chieftain of Tammany Hall.

Raskob set the tone for the denunciation of the Volstead act.

Chicago's welcome was voiced by Edward N. Hurley and Mayor Cermak. The latter deviated from a formal welcome to sound a call for repeal of the 18th amendment and relief from the depression.

Raskob Praises Shouse.
Raskob took occasion in his short speech to sound the opening note in the fight for Shouse. He praised his right-hand man in glowing words, saying "there is no man more astute, able, honorable and fairer to deal intelligently with political problems of these United States."

The convention began nearly an hour late and it was long after lunch before Barkley completed his lengthy "call to arms." The convention recessed at 4:00 p. m., to resume again tomorrow at noon.

Roosevelt forces seized control of the committee on permanent organization, credentials and rules.

From the former they reentered the nomination of Senator Thomas J. Walsh, of Montana, as permanent

Pol Indicates Roosevelt Needs 100 Additional Votes

New York and Illinois Believed To Hold Key to Nomination of Governor by Democrats.

CONVENTION HEADQUARTERS, CHICAGO, June 27.—Governor Franklin Roosevelt, of New York, must recruit to his cause more than 100 additional votes if he is to attain the democratic presidential nomination under the two-thirds rule.

Figures compiled by the United Press after a canvass of the delegations tonight, stood as follows:

For Roosevelt—Instructed or pledged, 575; probable votes from split, unpledged delegations, 86; total 661.

Stacked against this was the vote pledged to other candidates which totaled 341 tonight.

Out of the 1,154 delegates in the convention that left a total of 132 delegates from which the winning side must draw its final strength, providing, of course, each can hold its present votes in line.

To win, Roosevelt must gather to himself 109 of those votes—or else must alienate votes from delegations pledged or instructed to other candidates. The opposition need only win to the standard of one of its seven candidates 44 of the 132 unpledged delegates to stop Roosevelt short of the necessary two-thirds.

The above figures concede Roosevelt 25 votes from New York, 45 from Pennsylvania, 2 from the Virgin Islands, 6 from the Philippines and 8 out of Illinois' 58. The opposition does not concede him such strength in those delegations although several observers considered those figures fairly accurate.

New York and Illinois, by giving Roosevelt the remainder of their delegations, could, on the basis of these figures, nominate him. It was known tonight that strong efforts to win more strength from Illinois and probably from New York, were under way.

Roosevelt also might be able to draw from Pennsylvania more votes than he is credited with in these calculations, although "stop Roosevelt" forces say the allowance of 45 is overliberal.

Roosevelt can be stopped if the opposition holds its present strength and can gain 44 votes from either Illinois or New York. Those two states seem to be the key to the situation.

KENTUCKY DEPUTY ABDUCTS STUDENT

Ministerial Visitor Disappears After Verbal Attack on Officer.

HARLAN, Ky., June 27.—(UP)—Harlan county officers were searching tonight for Aron Gilmartin, 22, Chicago divinity student, who disappeared after getting into a car with Deputy Constable Dillard Middleton at Evans, nine miles from here, tonight.

Fear was expressed by members of Gilmartin's party that he had been taken for a ride by Middleton and two companions, unidentified. Gilmartin had gone to Evans to preach on labor conditions and was standing on the street talking to a group of men. He mentioned a man named Bennett, reported to have been killed sometime ago by Middleton, when the latter was a deputy.

At this point, according to reports of F. E. Keller, University of Chicago graduate student of economics, and Ina M. White, Chicago church worker, who accompanied Gilmartin to Evans, Middleton stepped up and said, "Come on, let's go."

Gilmartin got in the car with Middleton. They drove toward Harlan and have not been seen.

The Chicagoans came here Saturday to make a study of conditions in Harlan county. When they went to see Rev. C. E. Vogel, of the Methodist church here, and told him of their intention to go to Evans, he warned them against the trip.

Keller expressed belief tonight that Gilmartin had been taken away by Middleton to be given a beating and possibly escorted out of the county. Several groups of writers and students have been expelled from the neighboring county of Bell, but this is the first time anyone has been "taken for a ride" in Harlan county. Sheriff John Henry Blair, veteran of the Harlan county labor troubles, tonight sent Chief Deputy Logan Lewis to Evans with Keller to pick up any possible trace of Gilmartin.

When Keller and Miss White started to return to Harlan after Gilmartin drove away, they discovered the tires of their car punctured and were driven in by Joe Caywood, who almost fought with J. M. Robison, chief of defense counsel, while testifying last week in the trial of F. M. Bratcher, charged with 27 others with murder in the slaying of Deputy Jim Daniels and three others in a roadside fight at Evans on May 5, 1931.

Startling Power Of Copper Will Help Thousands

New Scientific Treatment for Mal-Nutrition, Impoverished Blood and Constipation Brings Remarkable Results.

Yeast, Iron, and Copper are new and magic words in medicine. With a scientific combination of these three substances, scientists expect to bring health, strength and happiness to thousands of people now in the throes of poor health from mal-nutrition, impoverished blood, and the systemic pollutions of constipation.

The discovery that copper possesses astonishing power to increase the vital, strength-giving red corpuscles of the blood solves an age-old problem of science. Heretofore, iron has been the only reliance, but it often failed because the system would not absorb it. To quote one medical authority, "copper enables the system to absorb the iron easily," increasing the health-giving red corpuscles in some tests as much as twenty-five per cent! When iron and copper are given in combination with yeast vitamins, the general improvement in health is often little short of astonishing.

Thor's Vitamin Compound of yeast, iron and copper is the latest scientific treatment for mal-nutrition, impoverished blood and constipation. If you are weak, run down and nervous; feel exhausted after a day's work, and lack energy and strength when you get up in the morning; if you suffer from indigestion, lack of appetite, headaches, bilious attacks and auto-intoxication, take Thor's Vitamin Compound. See how quickly your system throws off impurities and gains strength and energy; digestive disturbances disappear, your appetite returns, and you regain a feeling of health, strength, energy and confidence.

Thor's Vitamin Compound of yeast, iron and copper is sold by all good druggists and thousands of people are benefiting by this new scientific treatment. It costs but fifty cents, and if you fail to show a gratifying gain in health within one week your money will be cheerfully refunded.—(adv.)

Grady Staff Held Blameless In Geraldine Cullum's Death

Institution Given 'Clean Bill' by Council Probers; Dr. Guy Ayers Raps Quiz by Laymen.

Grady hospital Monday night was absolved of any blame incident to the death of Geraldine Cullum, 11, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Cullum, Atlanta, when parents joined a special council committee in exonerating the institution, medical and surgical staffs and nurses of any neglect. Instead of being censured for treatment of the case the hospital and its attaches were commended.

The decision came after a prolonged session of the council committee, headed by Councilman Ellis B. Barrett, and followed a sharp tilt between Dr. Guy Ayers, chief of the Grady staff, precipitated when Ayers attacked the committee and council "for conducting an investigation which will hurt the institution and cause unfavorable publicity."

Barrett countered with an assertion that if no fault exists, a probe could not injure Grady "but on the other hand would instill confidence. I want to remind the staff further that the mayor and council still control Grady as it does all other departments of the city."

Committee members reached their unanimous decision in an executive session in which there was a move to censure the attitude "displayed by Dr. Ayers," but which was omitted from the resolutions because of a possible reaction against the hospital.

The Cullum child died at Grady on June 7, following a tonsil and adenoid operation after a call had been made for volunteers for a blood transfusion, but every indication was that she met death because of a cerebral hemorrhage or respiratory complications instead of from loss of blood, it was brought out. Every one of the experts called to the witness stand testified that he did not believe death was due to excessive loss of blood and pointed to the fact that the last reading of her temperature was 104.4 and that if loss of blood had caused death, the temperature ordinarily would have been sub-normal. Nine doctors were on or were called into consultation during the two-day struggle she made for life, it was said.

Pulse and temperature readings were made every five minutes after she began sinking and she was given artificial respiration, heart stimulants and other treatment, which, under ordinary conditions, would have caused a favorable reaction, according to the charts and to medical testimony.

"Council went about this investigation in the wrong way," Dr. Ayers told the committee. "You are laymen. You do not understand medicine and you cannot even follow the expert analyses of these reports. You have no business here investigating a purely medical matter. It is a disgrace for you to come here to jack up a group of doctors. You are incompetent to sit here as a board to hear any complaints of this nature. It means unfavorable publicity which will react to hurt Grady. The newspapers want stuff which is sensational and will spread it on the front pages."

Barrett Defends Probe. "I think Dr. Ayres misunderstands the purpose of this committee," Barrett promptly countered. "We are not here to jack up anyone, and I want to ask you here and now, Dr. Ayres, if you have been jacked up by this committee or if anyone else in here has been jacked up. The mayor and council are still in control of Grady hospital as they are of all other municipal departments."

Several other members of the medical staff insisted that Dr. Ayres had been misunderstood, and that he did not mean to affront the council committee.

Alderman James E. Bowden joined Barrett in answering the attack made by Dr. Ayres.

When the hearing was opened Barrett announced that Dr. Harry Ridley had been designated by the committee to act for the committee in interpreting the hospital report, and, on motion of Councilman Joseph E. Berman, Dr. Frank Eskridge was named to represent the Grady staff. Both took leading parts in the hearing, but Dr. Ridley said he could not tell the cause of death and that he did not believe the patient died from loss of blood.

Charts and hospital reports showed that a blood count showed she was virtually normal as to red corpuscles, and that the coagulation time was normal.

Peacock Performed Operation. Dr. W. H. Peacock, intern, who is a licensed physician, performed the operation, with Dr. LeRoy Childs, one of the city's leading surgeons, in the room. Dr. Bomar Olds, head of the nose and throat ward; Dr. Arthur Fort, also connected with the clinic; Dr. George Fuller, of the surgical staff; Dr. Cyrus W. Strickler, Dr. L. G. Baggett, Dr. C. C. Davison, of the staff, Miss Gladys Brantley, nurse who attended the child, and John B. Franklin, superintendent of Grady, were among the other witnesses.

Dr. Childs pointed out that a transfusion probably would have hastened rather than prolonged the death of the patient.

Dr. Olds told the committee that the case was unusual, but that when "the Lord gets ready to take life, we can't stop Him."

Mr. and Mrs. Cullum expressed satisfaction at the treatment their daughter received after having sat through the entire hearing, and Mrs. Cullum expressed her thanks to the doctors. She also appeared in the executive session of the committee to reiterate her belief that the child received "good treatment."

"I am convinced after hearing this testimony that little Geraldine got all the attention possible," Mrs. Cullum told members of the staff assembled. "At first I believed she had been neglected, but I have changed my attitude. I want to thank you for what you did for her and to say that I would trust myself to the care of Grady at any time I needed medical or surgical attention."

Dr. Ayres told the committee that appointment of such a council group was unnecessary, saying that if anything had been wrong, the executive committee would have disciplined anyone guilty of neglect. He said the committee probed it at the time.

Governor White Leaves for Chicago

COLUMBUS, O., June 26.—(AP)—Governor George White, Ohio's favorite son, choice for the democratic presidential nomination, left late tonight for the party's national convention. He previously said he did not intend to go to Chicago.

No reason was given for Governor White's decision to visit the convention, but during the day he talked by telephone with Henry G. Brunner, state party chairman, who is in Chicago.

It was believed the purpose of his sudden trip to Chicago was to keep the state's delegation intact.

Chief tally clerk: Kenneth Romney, Montana.

Assistant tally clerks: S. Lamar Gill, Texas; E. G. Sherrill, North Carolina; Maurice J. Freeman, New York; and Arthur J. O'Keefe, Massachusetts.

ROOSEVELT'S TIDE IS SWINGING HIGHER

BY WILLIAM ALLEN WHITE.
(Copyright, 1932, by The North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)
CHICAGO, June 27.—The click of Chairman Raskob's gavel had hardly ceased echoing in the great hall where the democratic national convention met before evidence began to pile up that the delegates are a wild, free people who have just come down from the trees and out of the woods.

Evangeline Booth, in her invocation prayer, practically stole the keynote speech, and Mayor Cermak, of Chicago, in welcoming the delegates, proclaimed the slogan of the repealers and started the prohibition fight 48 hours in advance of schedule. Then along came Temporary Chairman Barkley with the keynote speech which declared that the democratic party is not for free trade.

Things were moving fast—fast but free. No one seemed to have edited the prayers or the speech of the keynote of this convention.

Sunday night the delegates went to bed feeling that it was all Roosevelt and that the Roosevelt program would prevail. Before the first session of the convention had adjourned it was evident that Roosevelt scarcely could be stopped for the nomination, but that his managers already had abandoned the fight for the full abrogation of the two-thirds rule that he would have to take a compromise running mate, and probably could not get a liberal statement of the Roosevelt position on power and the public utilities without an in-possibly a serious fight which may be led by former Senator Jim Reed on the floor of the convention.

No Alliances. Now all this exploding dynamite has not been depth-bombed laid carefully by Roosevelt's enemies. As a matter of fact, the Roosevelt opposition, which controls at least one-third of the convention under the unit rule, has not met or formed any sort of alliance, as these words are written.

Smith has been making a lone fight. So has Reed. Garner forces, under the leadership of McAdoo, have been obviously juggling for position. The signs they make in the convention, interpreted seem to be an invitation for a horse trade from the Roosevelt people.

Tammany is a sphinx. Jim Reed is holding the Missouri delegation to the last ditch for himself. He is entering into no entangling alliance, not even with Smith, who is the only openly fighting force in the convention. The Lewis boom in Illinois and the White boom in Ohio have cracked open and Roosevelt seems to be the gainer in the explosion. But the explosion came as the result of inner pressure, not through any fine work from the Roosevelt managers. Murray early passed outward with the tide, waving his supporters a weary good-bye, at the end of a reception in his headquarters, and smiled as he exclaimed:

"Well, I'll be with you in death as I was in life," as the blue jay said to the tomat, and turning he trudged wearily from the hall into his bedroom. And so into oblivion.

This list of casualties set forth above is printed to show "the change and decay in all around we see" here on Michigan avenue after the first day of the convention.

Nature's Course. These candidatorial exits have not been forced by Roosevelt. They came as the result of no Rooseveltian pressure. Nature merely is taking her course. Curiously the same course of nature which forced these candidates out of the combat is beginning in exactly the same way to resurge, forcing the fight on Roosevelt.

This repercussion has not come out of political acumen, nor is it the result of conscious combination or inner intrigue. The delegates are tied to Roosevelt. They are loyal enough to him, but they chafe under restraint. Which means that they are democrats, unwashed and unperfected, who are going to have their own way and exert their own royal American right to dominate the convention even after the people at home, voting in primaries and caucuses, have chosen the president for them to name here in Chicago.

However similar may be the creeds set forth in the platform now taking shape to those of the republican platform, the method of expressing these identical creeds, the procedure of the convention and the way of the democrats, are vastly different. They don't take a set program here this week. "Orders are not orders."

Compared with the conventions of 30 or 40 years ago, this democratic convention, and naturally the eminently respectable republican convention, look like gatherings of the Christian Endeavor. There is casual drinking in the rooms. Two of the hotels are said to have official bootleggers who tap from door to door in the morning, soliciting trade.

It is not hard to get a drink. Liquor prices are moderate. The lubrication is fairly pure. But the drunk, the sloppy, noisy, weeping statesman staggering under a bun is rare. The times have improved. Liquor does not mean so much as it meant to the generation that nominated Grover Cleveland and Benjamin Harrison. Probably more men talk about booze and drink less than their fathers.

At any rate, these two conventions have been sober conventions as national political conventions go.

The presence of women probably has helped. There seem to be more women in the democratic delegations on the floor than the republicans had. But possibly this is because the democratic call provided that at least half of the delegates-at-large must be women.

Their influence is civilizing. Whether they affect the choice of candidates or the formation of the platform makes little difference. They brighten up the crowds and give men something to think about besides their sorrows and keep men's feet in a fairly narrow path.

Opposition Caucuses. Probably some sort of a caucus of opposition leaders will assemble before these words find their way into type. It seems hard to rally around any leader. Smith, who refused to pledge allegiance in advance to Roosevelt, is a belted cat. The others are afraid of him. He can't take the leadership and no one else has the brains or power.

But the managers of the presidential candidates, the local bosses of state and city politics in the great states like Massachusetts, New Jersey, New York, Missouri, Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, California and Texas will hardly let the opportunity pass to restore the untrammelled freedom without forming some kind of a line against the conquering Roosevelt army.

The spontaneous, devastating opposition to the abrogation of the two-thirds rule that was manifest when the delegates met for the first time has given the opposition some hope—a hope not to defeat Roosevelt, but a hope to put him in his place—a hope to restore the untrammelled freedom of the unshackled democracy of Jefferson and Jackson.

The first fight now looms. So far it has looked like a parade. The parade ground seemed to be fairly bumpy and mined in places at the start—but now the shooting will begin.

$2,240,000,000, only incidental mention was made by the president's message of the subject of economy.

Democratic Economy in Congress.

The democratic house of representatives reduced appropriations requested by the president by more than $100,000,000 and the democrats of the senate forced appropriation bills back to committee with instructions to reduce them by at least another 10 per cent.

When through an economy committee efforts were made to reduce expenses still further, the president denounced what he called a "Locust Swarm" of lobbyists around the capitol opposing reductions, but failed to announce that the chief "locusts" in size, frequency and activity were members of his own cabinet who opposed reductions in their own departments.

But when at last in the senate additional reductions were effected amounting to more than $200,000,000 per annum, the whole program was torpedoed by the president himself because his pride in a pet gesture was greater than his desire for actual relief to the tax-burdened people of the United States.

Therefore the failure to lift from the American people any appreciable part of the burden that now bears them down lies at the doors of the president of the United States and his chiefs of state.

What will the incoming democratic administration do about this imperative situation? Do we propose to reduce the expenses of government, or merely to hold conversation about it? Do we propose, as our opponents have done, to let our right hand know what our left hand is doing, and keep our lips ignorant of both?

Our answer again is emphatically NO! We propose to reduce the expenses of this government not only for its own sake and that of the people, but as an example to smaller units throughout the nation. WE PROPOSE TO ABOLISH EVERY USELESS OFFICE, EVERY UNNECESSARY BUREAU AND COMMISSION WHICH HAS GROWN BY WHAT THEY CALL THE TOTAL HAS BECOME AN INSUFFERABLE WEIGHT UPON ALL THE ACTIVITIES AND RESOURCES OF THE AMERICAN PEOPLE.

They will never be abolished by those who now operate them. A new Hercules must clean out these Augean stables. While the breakdown in the processes of effective and intelligent government has been no greater than the breakdown in the confidence of the people, at no point is the complete loss of confidence more apparent or striking than in the banking situation.

Last Decade Marked by Bank Failures.

We have heard by far the most about the 3,800 banks which failed during the 15 months from October, 1930, to January, 1932. Their deposits amounted to almost two and a half billion dollars and their failures threw the public into a state of panic. Deposits were withdrawn and money was hoarded to an amount estimated at one and a half billion dollars.

But these were not the beginning of bank failures in the United States. During the years from 1921 to October, 1930, there were 6,400 bank failures in the nation. These were mostly in the western and southern states and were generally attributed to mismanagement and speculation in farm lands. It was only when the larger failures began to occur in the larger cities that the subject received serious attention in high official quarters.

SINCE THE BEGINNING OF 1921, WHICH COVERS THE PERIOD OF COMPLETE REPUBLICAN CONTROL, WE HAVE HAD MORE THAN 9,800 BANK FAILURES, INVOLVING DEPOSITS OF MORE THAN $4,000,000,000, WHILE FOR EIGHT YEARS UNDER WILSON ONLY 400 BANKS CLOSED THEIR DOORS INVOLVING DEPOSITS OF ONLY $165,000,000.

The number of banks that have failed and the amount of deposits involved since the beginning of the Harding administration down to this date is greater than the total number of banks and the total amount of deposits in all the banks in the nation 40 years ago.

Yet what has the present administration done to correct any fundamental defects in our banking system? What have they done to ascertain the causes of these financial disasters?

Where are the great financial master minds supposed to lurk in the ranks of republican leadership?

Mourful silence is the sole answer that comes back to us in response to all these questions.

Congress passed the Reconstruction Finance Corporation act, the Glass-Steagall act, and created one or two other agencies of temporary resuscitation, with the active, constructive and intellectual assistance of democrats in both houses of congress. But everybody knew, as they know now, that these measures did not remedy the fundamental causes of the disaster and were only designed as governmental plasters to keep life in the patient until nature could take its course or a major operation could be performed. The only constructive measures brought forward in this congress originated with the democratic membership of that body. If any permanent remedy for any of our financial and economic ills has found lodgment amid the welter of irresponsible republican incompetency, it had been carefully and successfully concealed and is still a profound secret.

It is the most amazing and exasperating that all this lack of intelligent study and assistance in the rational conduct of government where it touches industry should prevail in a period during which the functions of government have been increased beyond all previous history.

What shall we do about it when given power and responsibility?

Democrats Would Strengthen Banking System.

The democratic party gave to the nation the federal reserve system. But no law is better than the men who administer it. The functions of this system have been greatly misused and perverted by those who still work with old formulas and are held by the spell of ancient controversies and traditions.

What will restore public confidence in banking itself and in its ability to perform the duty for which it is designed? What remedy can be applied to prevent the world's largest number of bank failures in the world's richest and most advanced nation?

Consideration should be given to the revision of the federal reserve act to insure more direct contact with commercial banks and borrowers.

We should restrict the channels of stock market operations and expand those of commercial operations.

There should be reorganization in the personnel of reserve banks where necessary.

There should be a fair and adequate system of investment banking control and regulation, applying to investment banking the same quality of regulation now applied to commercial banking.

This means that banking institutions as such should be divorced from stock market operations of the character seen in recent years, which contributed to the collapse of our financial institutions and the loss of billions of dollars and the confidence of the people.

There should be encouragement and regulation of independent institutions devoted to the purchase, sale, issue or underwriting of legitimate securities, public and private.

There should be improvement in the supervision and examination of all banking institutions, and more co-operation in the supervision and control of state and national banks.

There should be some reasonable form of workable and enforceable assurance against bank failures and against loss when failures occur, to insure greater confidence among depositors and investors. Unless some permanent and fundamental remedy for this condition can be found and applied, banks will continue to fail and have to acknowledge themselves as bankrupt as the institutions which have collapsed before their eyes.

For Permanent Solution of Prohibition Problem.

Any discussion of the functions and problems of the state and national governments is incomplete without some reference to the policy involved in the eighteenth amendment to the constitution. While the discussion of this subject frequently arouses animus and prejudice which cloud the soundness of judgment and the wisdom of decision, nevertheless at this time it deserves that calm and earnest thought which may lead the American people to its wise and permanent solution.

It serves no useful purpose now to quarrel over the process by which it was incorporated in the constitution. It was adopted by the same constitutional method which was followed in the adoption of all other amendments to that instrument. So long as it is a part of that constitution no citizen of the republic has a legal or moral right to violate it.

But any American in the exercise of the functions of citizenship has the same right to advocate the change or repeal of any law which he has to advocate its enactment in the first instance. While those who have supported this amendment have been and are actuated by the loftiest motives of service to society, we must admit that neither the amendment nor the laws made for its enforcement are beyond the power, or right of revision, amendment or abrogation by the will of the people.

It is manifest, therefore, that a re-expression of the will of the American people on this great question is advisable and justified in the most direct and effective manner possible under the constitution.

This government is the people's government. The constitution is their constitution. From its foundation the democratic party has believed in the people, has extended their power and relied on the soundness of their ultimate conclusions. It is not afraid to risk their judgment now upon a great moral and economic problem which affects their homes and their national welfare.

Two weeks ago in this place the republican party promulgated what it called a "plank" on the subject of the eighteenth amendment. But it is not a plank. It is a promiscuous agglomeration of scrap-wood. At one point it proclaims its opposition to the repeal of this amendment and at another it announces its support of its repeal in states where the people want it repealed or made inapplicable. It defies definition.

Whatever may be the divergent views of men and women on the merits or demerits of the eighteenth amendment, it is a most policy, it is inconceivable that this or any other part of the constitution of the United States should apply to only a part and not the whole of the American nation. That great instrument declares that "this constitution and the laws made in pursuance thereof shall be the supreme law of the land." But it cannot be the supreme law of the land if it can be abrogated by the people of a part of the land while remaining in force over the rest of them. Such a conception destroys the very nature and structure of the constitution, for if it can be made thus to qualify one of its provisions it may be made to qualify all of them. This would be the end of the constitution itself.

For Resolution Repealing Eighteenth Amendment.

Under these circumstances this convention owes it to the people of the nation to make its declaration upon this subject clear, understandable and unequivocal. There is no reason why the people should be deceived or deluded. There is no reason why a political declaration should lack in every direction and see nothing. In order, therefore, to obtain the present will of the American people on this subject of universal controversy, this convention should in the platform here to be adopted recommend the passage by congress of a resolution repealing the eighteenth amendment and its submission to the people of the states through conventions whose delegates shall be chosen upon this issue alone. If the people are to pass again upon this question, let them pass upon it in such bald, naked and unequivocal terms as to make their decision intelligent and certain. If their verdict shall be in favor of retaining the eighteenth amendment in the constitution, let every true citizen of the nation accept the decision and abide by it in letter and in spirit. If the verdict shall be for the repeal of the amendment, then let every branch of the national government exercise all the powers they possess to protect the states in the observance and enforcement of the laws which they shall enact to control, regulate or prohibit the traffic in intoxicating liquors.

In the light of the failures of government as we have experienced them in the United States under Mr. Hoover and his republican predecessors, it is not strange that in 1930 the people of the nation repudiated their leadership and chose a congress democratic in one branch and equally divided in the other.

For seven months that congress has been at work. It was called upon to do in haste what should have been done months before in calm deliberation. A display of the slightest foresight, a courageous facing of the situation as it could have been faced early in 1931, could have resulted in the deliberate enactment of provisions which later became matters of feverish precipitation.

But it was not done. The cry went out that what business and finance agriculture and everybody wanted and need was for congress to go home and let the president have a free hand, a feeling not altogether unrelated to the wishes of the White House itself.

Congress went home. The president was left a free hand. But his made wand failed to perform its miracles. Empty phrases of optimism and reassurance, based on nothing but the stimulated business or confidence, and when congress assembled in December it had at once laid on its doorstep the greatest category of emergency needs that has confronted congress since the World War.

Co-Operation by Democratic Congress.

How did that congress approach the performance of its duties? Did it proceed to play politics as the republican congress played it during the last two years of Woodrow Wilson's tenure?

Did it waste its time and the people's money in the appointment of non-meritorious committees, in the delay of legislation and in the appointment of a president and a political party?

Again the answer is emphatically NO. To a degree never before known in times of peace, and rarely even in war, we joined with our opponents in rendering common service to our common country. We sought no party advantage at the peril of the nation's welfare.

In order to balance a budget we had not unbalanced, we helped to pass a revenue bill levying more than a billion dollars in new taxes upon an already overtaxed people, though many of its provisions violated convictions which had been held for a generation.

As often in our dealings with other nations partisanship has ended at the water's edge, so in the face of a national catastrophe we did not bring about we have not thought in terms of the democratic party, but in terms of America. We were in the midst of an emergency. Our house was on fire, and we could not stop to dispute over the brand on the back and ladder. Though the fire chief was known to be vacillating, uncertain, timid and afraid of the smoke and flames, we have tried to make the best of it and get along with him until we can secure a better one, which we expect to do on or about next March.

A few words more and I shall have finished. Is there anything wrong with this country of ours? Has the character of our people changed? Are they less resolute or resourceful than of yore? Are they less patriotic than the generations of the past? Has the light of genius fled from them? Has their cunning, their industry, their patience, their dauntless courage departed?

We have yet our fair land, its rivers, its mountains, its soil, its climate, its natural resources touched yet only on the surface. We have yet the most cosmopolitan population, drawn from the quarters of the globe, which ever inhabited any nation in human history. We have yet our will to work. Republican leadership has deprived us of work for the time, but we still have the will.

No, my countrymen, there is nothing wrong with this republic except that it has been mismanaged, exploited and demoralized for more than a decade by a leadership incomparably short-sighted and bereft of true statesmanship, incapable of understanding and dealing with fundamental causes, and incapable in the midst of its fearful havoc of understanding the extent of its own mischief.

Country Sound, But Mismanaged.

No, my countrymen, there is nothing wrong with our people except that they have followed prophets who were false, blind and insensible to their own limitations.

In all the generations of American history the people in every great crisis have turned to the democratic party to lead them from the wilderness of disappointment and disaster.

It was so in 1800, when the profound and gifted father of American democracy, Thomas Jefferson, led the people from incompetence and reaction to new heights of popular government.

It was so in 1828, when Andrew Jackson drove out the congregation of the unholy and the unrighteous and restored to the people the government of Jefferson.

It was so in 1848, when Grover Cleveland returned to the people and to their government the priceless heritage of a principle that "public office is a public trust."

It was so in 1912, when Woodrow Wilson gave a new interpretation to the inarticulate craving of the human heart and the ideals of a world above the sordid machinations of selfishness and brutal greed.

IT WILL BE SO IN 1932, WHEN THE PRINCIPLES HERE ANNOUNCED AND THE LEADERS HERE CHOSEN WILL IN THE NAME OF A PEOPLE BETRAYED, BEWILDERED AND MISLED REDEEM FOR THEM A LAND DESPOILED AND MADE BARREN BY THOSE WHO KNOW NOT THE WAYS OF WISDOM OR OF PROVIDENCE.

Such a nation, such a people need only the glimmer of a new hope, the inspiration of a new goal, the stimulus of a new battle-cry, and the marching orders of a new commander.

That hope, that goal, that battle-cry, that commander we shall present to them ere we shall adjourn this convention. He will be the choice no less of farm than of city dwellers. He will be experienced and tested no less in national than in state affairs. When chosen to the high station whereunto we shall nominate him, we pledge his dedication to the service of the whole nation without regard to class or creed or section.

God of our Fathers, in this hour of the nation's travail, amid broken hearts, blasted hopes, faces that are drawn and feet that are eager for the road to labor and to lawlessness.

"Be with us yet,
Lest we forget,
Lest we forget."

ROOSEVELT FOES LEAN TO RITCHIE

Marylander First and Baker Second Choice, Is Now the Plan.

CHICAGO, June 27.—(UP)—Anti-Roosevelt forces tonight were concentrating on Gov. Albert W. Ritchie, of Maryland, as their choice for the presidential nomination. Should that movement not succeed, Newton D. Baker, of Ohio would then receive their support, under the program being considered.

Some New York delegates were leading the Ritchie boom, and were expected to give him votes on the first ballot.

However, there also were reports that John F. Curry, Tammany leader, would swing in, early or late, for Roosevelt.

Mississippi's delegation, hitherto considered pro-Roosevelt, was showing some sentiment for Baker and Ritchie. Indiana was expected to give at least two votes to Alfred E. Smith, with Baker as second choice.

The Baker forces looked for possible support from Governor William H. Murray, of Oklahoma, who played a prominent part in the selection of Woodrow Wilson by the 1912 convention at Baltimore.

delegate. She was at New York in 1924 and four years ago she was one of the delegates at large at Houston. This year she is a representative from the third district.

Mrs. Gussie G. Raines, of Dawson, Ga., is one of the delegates at large this year. She is a daughter of the late Congressman James Graves, of the third Georgia district, and for some time has been active in politics.

Miss Stella Akin, of Savannah, is one of the alternates at large and is secretary of the Georgia delegation. Miss Akin is a practicing attorney in her home city and is secretary of the state democratic executive committee. She was a leader two years ago in the campaign which resulted in the election of Governor Richard B. Russell Jr.

Mrs. Z. V. Peterson, of Atlanta, formerly a member of the city school board and active in Parent-Teacher association work, is another alternate at large. She was an active figure in politics before the women had the right of suffrage, Atlanta women having participated in primaries two years in advance of the ratification of the suffrage amendment.

She was the first woman to be an officer of the city democratic committee of Atlanta and is now secretary of the fifth district congressional committee.

Mrs. Susie T. Moore, of Tifton, a delegate from the second district, organized numerous Roosevelt-for-president clubs preceding the campaign in which he carried every county in Georgia in the presidential preference primary. She has been an active worker in political campaigns for several years.

Mrs. W. R. Simpson, of Decatur, delegate from the fifth district, is a member of the state democratic executive committee. She was described by State Chairman Lawrence Camp as "one of the most active democratic workers I ever saw."

Mrs. George H. Keller, of Marietta, from the seventh district, is the step-mother of O. B. Keeler, golf writer of the Atlanta Journal.

Mrs. J. W. Johnson, of Center, from the ninth district, has been postmaster of the Georgia legislature for several years and this has given her a wide acquaintance throughout the state. She has been an active worker in the victory drive campaign.

is jealousy or a wish to have had the nomination for himself.

A major reason for unresponsiveness on the part of the convention to any appeal from Smith is their feeling that Smith and his present attitude means strife and cleavage. The delegates associate him with the grief they had in 1928 and in 1924 when Smith had his long deadlock with McAdoo. They think further that Smith was given his chance in 1928 and that now he should be willing to "play the game."

They think of Smith as the symbol of trouble, and the delegates want a avoidance of trouble even more than they want Roosevelt.

They think the best way to avoid trouble is to agree upon Roosevelt and to drop him quickly. That outcome is decidedly the present probability. If Smith were now and had been out of the picture, the convention might more readily be held to deliberation about the comparative qualities of candidates.

It should be added that nearly half the delegates are for Roosevelt for Roosevelt's sake. They reflect discontent and distress throughout the country, and they think of Roosevelt as the symbol of a new deal.

METHODISTS PLAN TO CUT EXPENSES

Decreased Revenue Forces Retrenchments, Leaders Declare.

The general committee on benevolences of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, held a meeting Monday to discuss the decline in revenues and how to meet the obligations of the departments. The meeting was held at the Piedmont hotel.

Although the year is not over so that figures could be presented at the meeting, it was said that there would be a decline in the revenues this year to be used in the various benevolent work of the church. The present financial situation was gone over and the discussion centered around a revised financial policy which will be presented at the next meeting of the general conference.

"The commission is seeking ways to effect economy and to reduce the general and conference askings for the next four-year period. In order that the present revenues be sufficient it will be necessary that the list of benevolences be decreased instead of increased, but the commission is hoping to cut costs so as to keep as many as possible supplied with money," Dr. C. C. Jarrell, secretary of the committee, said.

Each agency or department of benevolences of the church was represented by two members. They included missions, church extension, hospitals, education, superannuates, lay activity, temperance, and the bishop fund departments.

Dr. W. G. Cram, of Nashville, was chairman of the meeting.

VERDICT IS RETURNED IN DEATH OF DOAK

The coroner's jury which Monday afternoon investigated the death of Ralph R. Doak Jr., who was killed at the Ford Motor plant last Saturday, returned the following verdict:

"The deceased came to his death from having his skull crushed between an automobile and a guard rail around a pit at the end of the assembly line of the Ford plant in Atlanta, Ga. We further find that no one is criminally responsible for said accident, but that there is gross negligence inherent in the system of discipline obtaining at said plant as the result of which employees feel that they are required to act without regard to the safety of other employees working in position of eminent peril."

Mr. Doak was killed, Coroner Donohoe asserted, when J. S. Mills, acting under orders from R. F. Aldred, foreman, started a car suddenly without warning Mr. Doak, who was working beneath the machine. The young man's head was crushed.

Funeral services will be held at 4 o'clock this afternoon at the Spring Hill chapel of H. M. Patterson & Son, with the Rev. Herman L. Turner officiating. The body will be taken to Chicago, Ill., for interment.

Prohibition Blamed by Minister Asking Mercy for Boy Burglars

Prohibition views of the Rev. Samuel S. Daughtry, pastor of Westminster Presbyterian church, as expressed in Fulton superior court Monday, created a minor sensation until Dr. Daughtry went further into the subject and explained that he was not attacking the prohibition law but referring to lack of enforcement of the liquor statute.

Appearing in Judge Virlyn B. Moore's division, Dr. Daughtry was said to have observed that "while it may sound peculiar as coming from a preacher, prohibition in large measure is responsible for the plight of these boys." He spoke in behalf of Herman Whitten and Kermit Crabtree, youths charged with burglarizing a Rogers store on Fifth street, near Durant place.

Dr. Daughtry explained later that what he meant was that lack of prohibition enforcement was to blame. In an endeavor to explain to the court just what Dr. Daughtry meant, Attorney Ellis Barrett said that the minister was trying to show that the quality of whisky sold nowadays, containing potash, tobacco and other foreign matter, makes youth do strange things.

Judge Moore observed that he did not see how the easy purchase of good whisky would make boys any better, and that he did not care to enter into an argument on the prohibition law. He sentenced each youth to serve 12 months, and referred their cases to the probation officer for investigation.

FLORIDANS TO VOTE IN 2D PRIMARY TODAY

Run-Over for Governorship Still Attracts Most Interest.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., June 27.—(UP)—Floridians will go to the polls again tomorrow for a second primary to name state officials. They will elect, in a run-off from the primary three weeks ago, a governor, a congressman at large, a congressman from the first and third districts, a state auditor and a railroad commissioner.

The governor's race has attracted the most interest. David Sholtz, Daytona Beach attorney and comparative newcomer in Florida politics, has waged an aggressive battle against former Governor John W. Martin. Martin's side has charged Sholtz with lack of experience while Sholtz backers counter by carrying on charges of extravagance made against Martin in the first campaign.

John T. Alsop Jr., former mayor of Jacksonville, and former Congressman W. J. Sears, also of Jacksonville, are battling for the post of congressman at large.

HEARING FOR HENDRIX IN SHOOTING DELAYED

While J. Howard Ellis, 38, of 523 Washington street, S. W., was waging a desperate fight for his life at Grady hospital Monday, hearing before the jury recorder of charges against Lee Hendrix, 44, city sanitary truck driver, who is alleged to have shot Ellis Sunday, was postponed until Friday.

Detectives working on the case said they had found conflicting evidence concerning the shooting and that the case was continued until they could verify all angles. In the meantime Hendrix is held without bond. Ellis, it was said following the shooting, was shot by Hendrix when the latter, as a special officer, attempted to arrest him at the instigation of F. M. Jones, who operates a lunch stand on Whitehall street. Jones suspected Ellis of being the man who earlier in the day attacked his son, Howard Jones, with a knife, it was said.

TAXPAYERS' LEAGUE TO MEET THURSDAY

Plans for the activities and future policies of the Taxpayers' League will be revealed for the first time at a special call meeting of the organization to be held on the roof of the Hendrix hotel at 8-30 o'clock Thursday night, according to an announcement Monday.

The official announcement was made through the medium of a four-page tabloid type newspaper in which the announcement states the meeting will be given a full report of the activities of the league since its formation to institute various economies in the city and county governments, as well as definite announcements of future policies.

BIG PICNIC PLANNED BY METHODIST GROUP

MORRIS CHARGES GET HEARING TODAY

Charges that Tom C. Morris, superintendent of the city dairy farm, where prisoners of the municipality are incarcerated, and former member of council, drank intoxicants during his tenure of office, that he slept while supposedly on duty and that he used city labor and city uniforms on his own private farm are slated for an airing this afternoon by the streets committee of council.

The session will begin at 3 o'clock, according to Councilman George Lyle, chairman, who called the session after five affidavits complaining of Morris' alleged irregular conduct had been offered at a meeting of the finance committee.

Finance committee members heard the complaints while in a secret session, and referred the entire matter to the streets committee.

An effort on the part of Councilman Parks Rusk to cut William A. Hansell, first assistant chief of construction in charge of sewers, from the pay rolls will go to council at its meeting Monday, July 4, with an adverse report. Hansell has been under fire because he was placed in the department through a trade with Charles Donaldson, chief, and Henry Benson, who formerly held that post, was relieved of his duties.

Committee members declined to consider a move to reinstate Virgil Echols, superintendent of streets repair forces, and thus for the time being thwarted an effort of Echols' friends to retain him in the construction department.

Morris has been a storm center for the past several months. He took an active part in the effort to recall Mayor James L. Key, according to reports, although he has since branded the rumors as "lies." He was to have been relieved in a report of W. Evans Chambers, survey expert of the municipality, but was saved. His enemies, however, plan this afternoon to weave a web of guilt around him and to force his retirement.

During his service in council, Morris represented the 15th ward, but was defeated by James E. Rowden, who is now the fifth ward alderman.

INJURED FIREMAN IS STILL IN HOSPITAL

Of the five firemen injured early Monday morning in fighting a three-alarm fire at 173 Peters street only one was held at Grady hospital for other than emergency treatment though at first it was feared that two others of the five were seriously injured.

M. Fleming, of 393 Washington street, S. W., suffered an injured hip, a sprained back and a fractured rib. Though not considered seriously hurt he was being held at the hospital for observation Monday. W. E. Brooks, P. J. Donnelly, L. R. Connolly and Lieutenant S. H. Couch were the others injured. However, their injuries were slight and they were allowed to go to their homes after emergency treatment.

Concerning Umbrellas

Someone has humorously coined the following definition of a banker:

"A banker is a fellow who lends you an umbrella when the sun is shining, and wants it back again whenever it rains."

In justice to bankers, however, the "umbrellas" they lend are in reality the property of other people, and when it starts raining they may come in and want them!

EXTRAVAGANCE LED TO WILDERNESS, ECONOMY WILL LEAD US OUT.

It is remarked that people become insane, often rather than otherwise, about subjects that are close to the heart; worry about religion and money are two of the commonest occasions of insanity. It is hard to be sane about a subject in which you are vitally and enthusiastically interested. Witness the mother of an only child; about other things in life she has good taste and discretion; yet when the child is involved, she takes leave of her good sense and her good taste. She permits the child to grow up undisciplined. She boasts about him incessantly. She cannot carry on a conversation without bringing him into it. She is completely consumed with her passion for him. Many a man behaves in the same way about money. His interest in it runs away with him. His love for it consumes him. His delight in accumulating it sways his reason, and his joy in saving it renders him indifferent to other joys.

Is it not true that the secret of a sane and sober attitude about money lies in the matter of proper balance between making and saving money on one side and spending and giving money on the other? If the final desire for money issues in a man's being able to provide for his last needs and being able to leave his family well provided for, it is not such a bad final desire. If the final love of money issues in a man's having made provision for his family and his pet charities and his indulgent him, it is not so bad a love. And if a man has looked forward to the day when he will be helpless and has laid up "the power" on which he may call when in need, he has not been unwise.

Let the idealists cry "Indecent." Not so indecent is this man as is the one that fills a pauper's grave and leaves a family dependent on the state. Let the idealists cry "Indecent." Not so indecent is this love of money as is the bluff of the man that pretends to despise it, using his disdain as a cloak to cover up his laziness or as a pitiful defense against his inability to accumulate money sufficient for his needs and that of his family. "It is that provident not for his own is worse than an infidel" we read in Holy Writ.

However, in these days there is no talk about money; about the importance of making it, and saving it and using it properly, that shouldn't include a blanket excuse for the man that is without work owing to no fault of his own but rather to the great holocaust that has swept the world. Many a man, self-respecting, thrifty, industrious, conscientious, finds himself stripped to the financial bone. He is not an object of scorn but one of pity. He is not the man at whom the Scriptural anathema is hurled. He shouldn't be ashamed of his nakedness in life; and if death should come and find him without a shroud, he has his excuse.

In a masterly address before the graduating class of Notre Dame University, Owen Young lays the depression to the effort of farmers to meet the living standards of the tariff-protected industrial population. The farmer wanted to have the same luxuries that his neighbor had, and to keep political peace he was furnished artificial credit. But the pay day came as it always does. Of this state of affairs politicians would make a tariff issue, but you and I need only consider the non-partisan aspects of the case. You and I know, too, how came this depression, for each of us had a part in it. With one accord we wanted more, bought more, continued to buy for, and one day the pay day came. Some called it the great depression, some of the end of the boom, some the day of doom. But you and I know it was for most of us, merely the pay day. And most of us were not able to pay.

What has it taught you? The value of thrift, the folly of thoughtless spending? What has it taught you? To despise money or to love it? It may well have taught you both. It should have taught you to despise the money of dishonest origin and to love the money derived from honest jobs. To quote Mr.

Culbertson on Contract

A Winning Sacrifice

BY ELY CULBERTSON, World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst.

Overbidding in Contract plays. It is unwise to permit opponents to make their games unhampered by nuisance bidding and undismayed by the taking of penalties by the players holding apparently the poorer hands.

This point was vividly illustrated in a hand played recently at Duplicate at the Wissachick Club in Philadelphia. The hand was:

East-Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

♥ 4 10 6 5
♣ A Q J 10 8 5

♦ A K J 10 9 8 7
♣ A K J 10 9 8 7

The Bidding:
South West North East
Pass 4♠ 5♣ Pass
Pass 4♠ 5♣ Pass

North's bid of five clubs was perhaps unduly optimistic. The safe rule is to count upon your partner, who either has not bid or who has passed, for a maximum of 2 tricks, if vulnerable, and thus to determine the safety of the bid. North was making a heavier draft than this, however, upon his partner's holdings, when, over a game contract, he had opponents, he contracted for game in clubs. The inevitable Double, of course, followed, and when the Dummy went down, North saw that the penalty he had expected to take would be slight, indeed. By utilizing Dummy's trumps as entries to establish the diamonds, he held the loss to 1 trick.

His bidding had been over-enthusiastic. It was only redeemed from disaster by flawless play.

TODAY'S POINT.

Overbidding, in order to prevent opponents from making a game or a valuable part-score is an essential feature of correct Contract. The penalty accepted by undertaking an impossible contract, however, should never exceed the value of the possible score made by opponents.

TOMORROW'S HAND.

The bidding and play of the hand printed below will be discussed tomorrow.

East and West vulnerable.

Sudden Love

By ELIZABETH SANXAY HOLDING INSTALLMENT XXXVIII.

"I guess I'm 'normal' enough," she said a trifle sadly. "A little hard-boiled maybe. You have to be. But when I'm off duty I go out with my friends, and so on, the same as any other girl."

She was looking up into Michael's lean, dark face, with a smile that had in it a trace of anxiety. Esme knew how that girl felt. She wanted to please him—Michael—was not to please him—and it was not easy.

"I knew a nurse," Michael went on. "Pretty young kid—like you. Another fellow and I took her and a friend of hers out somewhere to dance. This other fellow, you know, as in love with the nurse—or beginning to be—and I wanted to get some idea how she felt about him. So when I was dancing with her I said something like 'I forget just what I said'—He's a nice fellow, isn't he? Something like that. And I know what she answered."

"No..." said the young nurse, looking up into his face.

"She said—Michael went on, "she said, 'O, yes, but he looks to me like a cardiac case. I never got over that. It was horrible.'"

"But I don't see..." said the young nurse, more anxious than ever. "That didn't mean she didn't like him or anything. It simply means that sometimes a person has a look—"

"It was horrible!" Michael repeated. "What sort of a look is that for a woman to think of a man?"

"But she couldn't help noticing he had a weak heart," said the nurse.

"She's outrageous," said Michael. "Don't you see how I would ruin anything? How do I know you're thinking now—about me?"

"O, you're all right," said she, disconcerted.

"I'd like to do a play about a nurse," said Michael. "A nurse in love—and the effect of her experience and her knowledge upon her emotion."

"But—nurses aren't different!" she protested. "Why, think of doctors."

"I never do," said Michael. "And anyhow, there's no possible way for comparing women with men."

"I guess you sort of look down on women," said the young nurse.

"Look down on them?" said Michael. "Merciful heaven! My dear girl, I'm afraid of them. They're—"

"May I please have a glass of water?" she asked in a clear voice.

Then Michael was at her side. "Esme—Esme, darling. Better, Esme—looked to see that the nurse had gone out of the room."

"You weren't—thinking of me at all!" she said, in tears.

"Esme—would it do you any harm if I kissed you? I wasn't thinking of you? If you know—what the night's been—"

She could see now how haggard his face was. She did know, she did understand, what he had endured. And she understood, too, his unquenchable interest in his fellow creatures, his curiosity, his vital need to see and to know.

"You told me," he said. "And I wouldn't believe you. And because I was such a damned, pig-headed, brutal fool, you nearly lost your life."

"I didn't, Michael. I'll be well again in just a little while. It's not serious, Michael."

"It's the most serious thing that ever happened in my life!" he said. "When that happened—when I held you in my arms, and I thought that if you were dead—"

If she had been in Michael's place, and seen him white and lifeless—"I took you to the doctor's," he said. "But—I felt I wasn't worth any good. It seemed to me I'd known from the beginning, that it was—too beautiful to last. As if I knew—I'd have to lose you. And I thought that when he said you were dead—I'd take you away—back with me—and smash the car into a stone wall. So that I could go with you. Because there'd be nothing without you."

"O, Michael, my boy..."

"I know how that fellow must have felt," he said, "to lose you. In a way, I hated telling the police—"

"You've—told the police?" she cried, and tried to sit up. But a sharp pain in her shoulder made her lie back again. "Michael"—she said in a voice that trembled uncontrollably—"O, can't it be dropped?"

"I'd rather shoot the fellow myself, in a decent way," said Michael. "But as I've got life arranged now, I can't do that. I can't—your case. There'd be too much of a row—scandal—all sorts of filth. Now I think it can be presented to the authorities as a straight holdup. I had to tell the police the fellow'd threatened me, but I hope that can be kept quiet."

"You've told the police—about Jimmy?"

"Had to, Esme. And there'll have to be a trial—and all that rotten chicanery. The police know him well enough. They've got nothing against him so far—and he's well protected. But as long as I can't wipe him out myself, he'll have to be handled according to the regulations. He'll go to jail—and probably he'd prefer a bullet."

"Nothing will happen to Jimmy," she thought. "As soon as there's any trouble for him, he'll throw Lew overboard. It's Lew who'll pay. Will it be in the morning papers, Michael?" she asked.

"I'm afraid so."

Then before the law had seized him Lew would begin to pay. He would learn from the newspapers, if he had not known at the time, what he had done. He had spoken of a scandalous scandal. There would be no scandal. There would be only Lew's agony, but her mother's. There would be disgrace and misery for Michael's people.

And nothing could stop it now. The police were already after Jimmy, and Jimmy would have to go. Jimmy would know how to protect himself.

"I'm sorry, Mr. Marriott," said the young nurse, "but Miss Sully will have to rest. She's been talking too much."

A complete change, there was now, in the young nurse. She was no longer the pretty girl who had been talking to Michael. She was a professional now, trained and disciplined to duty. She would say anything, do anything necessary, to protect her patient, at any cost to Michael.

He went at once, and the nurse drew up the shades, and turned out the lamp. It was almost midnight. She bathed Esme and brushed her hair, and set the room in order.

"Would it tire you if Mrs. Crowley came in for just a moment?" she asked. "She's been so anxious—"

"O, no!" said Esme, though in her heart she dreaded seeing Claire.

But it was a different Claire who entered. The nurse, almost timidly, asked, "She's been so anxious—"

"I just had to see for myself," she said. "I—last night Michael was—beside himself. I'd like to tell you—how we feel about your doing that for Michael. But I'm afraid I can't. I'll try to show you." She bent and kissed Esme's forehead. "I'll try—the rest of my life to show you."

After that had gone, Esme dozed a little and waked to ask for her mother. "She's downstairs at breakfast with Mr. and Mrs. Crowley," said the nurse. "Do you want her?"

"No, thank you. Only, it seems to stay early—for such a long time."

Later on the doctor came and changed the dress on her shoulder. "You're doing splendidly!" he said. "But you'll have to take it easy for a few days."

He smiled at her and she thought that in his face, and in the nurse's, and in Claire's, there was an almost intolerable kindness.

She was drowsy that morning, and dozed often. Her room was filled with flowers, but she did not note who had brought them, and did not trouble to ask. Her mother came in from time to time, once with Claire, who treated her with deference. Magnificently at home here, was Mrs. Sully, tranquil, amiable, almost august. Twice Michael came to the doorway and Esme smiled at him. She wanted to talk to him, to hold his hand, but evidently he was not permitted to enter.

At noon the nurse brought her a light lunch, and Esme ate.

Mrs. Wilson, Mrs. Murray Represent Vanishing Americans at Convention

BY MAXINE DAVIS.
CHICAGO, June 27.—(AP)—Two royal members of America's vanishing aristocracy came to Chicago to sit around the council fires of the democratic convention. They are Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, descendant of Chief Powhatan, and Mrs. "Alfalfa Bill" Murray, a princess of the Chickasaw tribe.

No gathering of the tribes is complete without the party's dowager empress. But this is Mrs. Murray's debut into national politics.

Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, tall, serene, smilingly silent on candidates and controversies, is at the Blackstone hotel. She is accompanied by Mrs. Cary Grayson, wife of the late president's physician and friend; her brother, John Bolling; Bernard M. Baruch, and her niece, Mrs. Mary Moulton, of Chicago. Sunday she wore a navy blue polka dot dress, with a clever white jacket, and one of the broad-brimmed hats she usually wears.

Mrs. Wilson never misses the meetings of the democrats. Never by word or look has she tried to influence one of them, or even to hint at the opinions she holds. The envious of the past, the new-comers in the ranks, are all her friends.

Mrs. Murray, tall, almost gaunt, with Indian aquiline profile and American dignity of carriage, is not the dowdy country woman one might expect. She has not the chic of the city boulevardier, but her dark blue knitted suit would never have been selected by a woman with a mother-hubard mind.

"Do I want my husband to be president?" she repeated. "Of course, I do. Because I know his old heart. He wants to do the best thing for the United States. He's the people's best bet—and I want him to win whatever he goes into."

Mrs. Murray is here, like Mrs. Al Smith, "to help her husband and to meet the people."

Not only has Mrs. "Alfalfa Bill" Murray attended a convention before, but she has never taken part in any politics.

"When I was a girl," her pleasant southern voice continued, "I lived in Indian Territory, where the residents had no vote. Then I married and my family took all my time." Mrs. Murray added that it was amusing to her to be called an Indian princess when she says, they don't have such things anymore. She is one-eighth Indian, and very proud that her husband is of Scotch ancestry.

Kiwanians Launch International Meet

LOHMANN CONCLUDES CAMP MEETING REVIVAL

Moses' decision to defy the powers of Pharaoh and lead the children of Israel out of Egypt rather than wait and deliver them as king of the Egyptians was described Monday night by the Rev. Fred Lohmann, of St. Louis, in his closing sermon at the Buehler Heights camp meeting preacher.

Due to the fact that a number of persons desired to be baptized on the final night the service was held in the Apostolic Assembly Pentecostal church, Washington and Fulton streets, after the Rev. Paul T. Barth, pastor of the church and director of the camp, had administered the rites of baptism.

"Moses, which side God was on and he did not make a mistake as some people believe," Mr. Lohmann said, "Egypt with all her wealth and glory crashed, but Moses remains. Faith took him by the hand as a young man and led him into immortality both in this world and in the world to come."

(yet to be selected), Mrs. Elsie Pickering; West Virginia, Herbert Fitzpatrick; Mrs. J. C. Burchinal; Wisconsin, Charles Broughton; Mrs. Gertrude Bowler.

Convention Highlights

CHICAGO, June 27.—(AP)—It is badge, band and button time in Chicago.

If a delegates hasn't been badge for Roosevelt or Ritchie, he must be for Smith, Garner, Byrd, Traynor or Alfalfa Bill.

"Button, button, who has the button, or a band or badge will do," clamor newly arriving political whoopers.

And candidate headquarters are passing them out through blondes and brunettes.

Down at the head of candidates' row, a person can get a six-inch blue and white badge with a three-inch picture of Roosevelt dangling at the end. Across the hall he will be handled a badge bearing the picture of Ritchie with a five-inch gold ribbon floating off to the elements.

In the button corridor one is buttoned first by a Garner worker, if he is really steamed up over Jack he can get a three-inch hat band, too.

Across the way a Traynor button, next a Smith button and on through Byrd and Reed until he gets to Alfalfa's corner, where if not careful he will be buttoned, hat-band and arm-banded for Alfalfa, even if he may be unable to vote.

Literature is of the running, no time for that, it is badges and buttons and bands.

A long line of New York delegates to the democratic national convention is likely to form outside the private hotel suite of Governor Albert C. Ritchie, of Maryland, this week by mistake.

John F. Curry, the Tammany chief, today sent engraved cards to all delegates from his state extending greetings from "the leader of the New York democracy, Tammany Hall."

In one corner were the words: "Suite F-26-30—Congress Hotel." Those rooms are occupied by the Maryland governor. The Tammany rooms are on the floor above. The error was blamed on a mix-up in hotel reservations.

Mrs. Woodrow Wilson arrived Sunday for the democratic convention.

A group of friends headed by Bernard M. Baruch, of New York, met her party at the train. She was accompanied by Admiral and Mrs. Carey T. Grayson and Randolph Boling, brother.

The widow of America's war-time president declined to take any part in the discussion over the presidential nominee.

Long after other candidates had called it a night, Governor William H. "Alfalfa" Bill Murray, of Oklahoma, continued his campaign for the presidential nomination—but with a minimum of effort to himself.

Early Sunday morning "Alfalfa Bill" still was greeting friends and well-wishers in his campaign headquarters on Candidates Row.

He had removed coat and vest, and lay in a big bed near the open door of his suite. One hand was stuck out over the side of the bed for a shake with the persons who drifted in.

The other waved a current edition of what Vice President Marshall declared was the need of the nation—a good 5-cent cigar.

The 1924 democratic presidential nominee, John W. Davis, of New York, says he has not committed himself on any candidate.

Emerging from the office of James A. Farley, the Roosevelt campaign manager, Davis said: "I have not committed myself on any of the candidates. I am going around from cage to cage to look at the animals and pick out one to support. But I am not saying anything yet."

Pickpockets, race track touts and other shady characters are being quietly but firmly invited to leave the Congress hotel, by several of Chicago's crack detectives.

The sleuths patrol the hotel's Peacock Alley, lobbies and mezzanine, spot the pickpockets and remove them to less ornate quarters.

A damp cloth dipped in baking soda will remove tea and coffee stain from china cups.

A solution of baking soda and water left to stand in baby's bottle after they are washed will keep them sweet.

Arizona Delegation Booms Woman For Vice Presidential Nomination

BY CAROL WILLIS HYATT.
(Copyright, 1932, by the North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

CHICAGO, June 27.—Into the flurry of feminine excitement over the democratic convention, a bit of news grew to crescendo proportions. A woman—and she is one of the most handsome of democrats—is to be proposed for the vice presidency! Franklin D. Roosevelt and Mrs. John C. Greenway, of Arizona, will be running mates this fall if plans already launched mature. They are old friends. Mrs. Greenway, who was Isabella Seimes, of Kentucky, and Mrs. Roosevelt made their debuts together. When the Roosevelts were married, Mrs. Greenway was a bridesmaid. For the last week she has been constantly in the Roosevelt headquarters.

This potential candidate has a magnetic personality. She is rather tall, usually shades her dark eyes with wide-rimmed brown hats and dresses simply and smartly. She was married first to Robert Ferguson, who died many years ago. She is also a widow, beloved for her generosity in Arizona, where her mine-owning husband made a fortune. During the last two years, her friends say, she has spent thousands of dollars helping disabled veterans.

Mrs. Nellie T. Bush of the Arizona delegation of nine men and three women, unanimously for Mrs. Greenway, to place her committeewoman's name in nomination.

"She is the best-loved woman in Arizona," she said, "and she knows and is at home in the east as well as the west."

The Arizona delegation is determined to make a real effort to win the nomination of this charming woman is sure. They have worked far into the night, lining up delegates for her. And while Mrs. Bush admits the outcome is dubious, she believes the move will help woman's position in politics. The men apparently are taking it seriously.

Mayor Anton J. Cermak, of Chicago, who stole the show when he appeared at the women's breakfast, looked a bit startled when he heard of the plan, but declared "it would be a wonderful idea and would help the ticket."

Mrs. Nellie Taylor Ross, vice chairman of the national committee, who says she must not champion any candidate, nevertheless believes Mrs. Greenway is qualified by her ability and personality for any honor or responsibility the country chooses to give her.

Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, of Illinois, thinks it would be grand, and Mrs. Addins Lovell, of Philadelphia, expects to arrive this week to visit Mrs. Lowell's sister, Mrs. Lewis Sharp, at her home on Fifteenth street.

Sara Lawrence College in Bronxville, N. Y., and will return there next year to finish her education.

with disarmingly frank friendliness to anyone who approaches her, thinks it "would be wonderful." But she qualified her statement by saying that if she had a vote she would give it to the person man or woman, whose principles she approved.

For 2,800 women, enthusiasm for the social prerogatives of their positions temporarily eclipsed their political duties as they got up to breakfast together in the Stevens hotel. From there they scattered through the stadium, some near the conspicuous seats of the leaders, some among the voting delegations on the floor and others in the galleries.

But long before Commander Evangelina Booth, of the Salvation Army, first woman to pronounce an invocation for a political convention, bowed her black bonneted head in prayer, feminine democracy in gala attire was hobnobbing over its coffee. The breakfast was the big social event of the convention week. So eager were women to attend that the huge ballroom was filled to overflowing and tables had to be squeezed into corridors.

Mrs. Elizabeth A. Conkey, chairman of the Illinois democratic women's convention committee, which gave the breakfast, presided. The committee women delegates and alternates were the honored guests.

Soft southern accents, which predominate among these democratic women, hummed harmoniously as they agreed upon one thing: They must elect the democratic nominee as president regardless of who is chosen. Nellie Taylor Ross, present vice chairman of the national committee, and Emily Newell Blair, who formerly served in that capacity, voiced this apparently unanimous sentiment.

Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, the "great lady" of the convention, crowd, holding herself aloof from the mass of delegates.

NEW YORK, June 27.—(AP)—

United States government issues firmed moderately in today's drowsy bond market.

It was the duller session in the past two weeks, sales totaling only $7,248,000, par value. The average for 60 selected bonds was four-fifths of a point net lower and the average for 20 principal industrials reached a new low for the year.

Softness of various bonds was generally attributed to the lack of constructive developments either in Washington or in the war debts and reparations conference at Lausanne.

Activities at the Chicago democratic convention apparently had little effect on trading.

Losses in the industrials and rails ranged from fractions to 2 or 3 points, but the utilities showed more resistance.

German government 5-1/2s advanced a point while the 7s eased. British 5-1/2s were slightly lower, and French loans were steady.

Highlights of Wall Street

BY CHARLES W. STORM, Editor, the News Service of Wall Street.

NEW YORK, June 27.—(AP)—A break in the price of the bid for the stock of a well-known Chicago bank from $45 a share to $2 a share was the chief market factor in the general stock market today.

Coming on top of the closing of a number of banking institutions in the Chicago district, it served to revive apprehension over the general banking situation and in turn caused a sharp decline in prices of local bank stocks and trust companies, many of which sold down to their previous low record prices.

In view of the policy of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to aid banking institutions in need of funds, there was considerable discussion in the street regarding the Chicago closings.

DISCOURAGED LIQUIDATION. In addition to liquidation for the account of recently closed banking institutions in the Chicago district, a fair volume of selling in other banks and trust companies was noted, persons who recently made purchases in the belief that the constructive measures adopted to aid banking and general business would bring to show beneficial results.

The renewal of banking trouble, however, together with the failure of general business to show signs of improvement, has discouraged speculators and investors.

DIVIDEND DECISIONS. Some of the uncertainty growing out of the expectation that a number of large corporations will reduce or omit their dividends, will be settled when the directors of the American Chemical company, the Allied Chemical company and the Atchafalpa railroad meet for dividend actions.

The electric and gas utilities were inclined to ease. Industrials were extremely dull.

In the utilities, a conspicuous transaction was the sale of a small block of Southern New England Telephone at 80. It was the first transfer this year in this market, and off more than 40 points since the previous transaction.

Germany Stirred by Move For Return of Monarchy

BY ERIC KEYSER.

BERLIN, June 27.—(UP)—A sudden intensification of political activity on the part of German monarchists and renewed fascist demands for peremptory suppression of the communist party further complicated internal troubles tonight after a week-end of sporadic violence in many cities.

Following close on reports that the exiled Kaiser Wilhelm had conferred with the former crown prince and German bankers in Holland, a movement in favor of restoring the Wittelsbach dynasty attracted wide attention at Wuerzburg.

Former Crown Prince Rupprecht, now journeying in France, was reported on the recent political strife over whether fascist brown shirt uniforms should be legalized when he addressed a patriotic society, which gave him an ovation.

"Bavaria must oppose the efforts to centralize the rich according to the western, notably the French, methods," he said in reference to the opposition of Bavaria and other southern states to the reich's demand that the brown shirts be permitted to demonstrate.

"We want to be good Germans, but also to remain good Bavarians. His master's empire was composed of allied states, and therein rested its strength."

At Dresden, Crown Princess Cecilie addressed 2,000 members of the Queen Louise League, which passed a resolution urging Germany's liberation at home and abroad. General Beck von Wulffingen, loudly cheered, demanded restoration of the monarchy in Germany. Princess Cecilie joined in the applause.

The princess touched closely on the strife over the brown shirts, which caused riots in which a dozen persons have been killed in the last 12 days. The fascist blame the communist party for the violence and strongly urged the government to suppress the party, but it was not believed such action would be taken.

NURSE, ON STAND, DENIES CALLING HUTTON "SISSY"

LOS ANGELES, June 27.—(AP)—Myrtle St. Pierre, Pasadena nurse, denied emphatically on the witness stand today that she had told several women friends she did not care about Edward Hutton because he was using for $200,000 breach of promise.

Prior to her cross-examination Miss St. Pierre had pictured the singer's attorney as a "stingy" and "selfish" man, as something of a Don Juan who overcame her with his love-making and betrayed her under promise of marriage.

"Isn't it true that about April, 1931, you told the woman who introduced you to Hutton that you didn't care anything about him because he was using for $200,000?" asked the attorney.

"No, I did not," the pretty nurse answered.

The second week of the trial opened in a storm of protest as Miss St. Pierre's counsel accused Hutton's attorney of "stinginess" three witnesses after they had been subpoenaed to testify for the nurse. The witnesses were Virginia Stevens, Edgar Egan, a Los Angeles attorney, and Miss St. Pierre.

James began with a reference to whether the nurse knew Arthur Graves, and asked if Graves had been in her apartment a week ago last Sunday night.

Miss St. Pierre denied it, saying Graves left at 11:30 p. m.

TENNESSEE SEEKING PARK LAND'S RETURN

WASHINGTON, June 27.—(AP)—The senate today passed a bill to authorize the secretary of the interior to convey to the state of Tennessee about 3,000 acres of land in the Smoky Mountains national park and not needed for that purpose.

What subject "What Would Happen If Christ Came?" the Welsh political leader said he would see the world still bleeding from wounds of the war, and that in history, and would see nations doing their utmost to perfect weapons more destructive, more terrible and more shattering than any that the world has ever known.

"That's what he would find after 2,000 years of the reign of the Prince of Peace," Lloyd George said.

SOLONS AT CAPITOL GATHER AT RADIOS TO HEAR BARKLEY

WASHINGTON, June 27.—(AP)—Senator Barkley's keynote speech before the democratic national convention in Chicago had an attentive audience today in the reading room just off the senate chamber.

A radio there was surrounded with republicans as well as democrats as the Kentucky senator's tone and republican record and demanded election of a democratic president.

Other radio in the senate office building and in the world's largest capital had groups of senators and their clerks clustered about them. The same prevailed in the house also.

The speaker's tone was other than the usual democratic statement that it was a "fine speech" and the republican retort that it was "old stuff."

Germany Stirred by Move For Return of Monarchy

BY ERIC KEYSER.

BERLIN, June 27.—(UP)—A sudden intensification of political activity on the part of German monarchists and renewed fascist demands for peremptory suppression of the communist party further complicated internal troubles tonight after a week-end of sporadic violence in many cities.

Following close on reports that the exiled Kaiser Wilhelm had conferred with the former crown prince and German bankers in Holland, a movement in favor of restoring the Wittelsbach dynasty attracted wide attention at Wuerzburg.

Former Crown Prince Rupprecht, now journeying in France, was reported on the recent political strife over whether fascist brown shirt uniforms should be legalized when he addressed a patriotic society, which gave him an ovation.

"Bavaria must oppose the efforts to centralize the rich according to the western, notably the French, methods," he said in reference to the opposition of Bavaria and other southern states to the reich's demand that the brown shirts be permitted to demonstrate.

"We want to be good Germans, but also to remain good Bavarians. His master's empire was composed of allied states, and therein rested its strength."

TARZAN OF THE UNTOAMED No. 8

Neither you nor I could have seen the little platform that an instant before had been just above Tarzan, and which now was below—but as he swung above it we should have heard an ominous growl.

In answer to the beast's growl, a low and equally ferocious growl rumbled from the ape-man's deep chest—a warning sound that told the panther he was trespassing upon the other's lair.

Slowly the ape-man moved along the branch. In his hand was the hunting knife of his long-dead father—the weapon that had first given him his real ascendancy over all jungle beasts.

He hoped not to be forced to use the knife, knowing well that more jungle battles were settled by hideous growling than by actual combat. The law of bluff held quite as good in the jungle as elsewhere!

1 KILLED, 7 SHOT IN STRIKE AFFRAY

West Virginia Coal Mine Area Is Scene of Fatal Labor Clash.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., June 27. (AP)—One man was killed and seven others wounded, two dangerously, in a coal mine strike shooting at the Masseyville mine of the Kelley's Creek Colliery Company today.

The killing was the first to occur in the northern West Virginia mine strike that began about two weeks ago.

The two men badly wounded may die. The others are in the Monongahalia county hospital with less serious injuries.

The dead man was James Shaffer, about 30 years old, a striking miner. State police arrested Herbert Vance and J. R. Thompson, mine guards, and brought them to the county jail.

The first report of the shooting reached here from Dr. W. H. Howell, a prominent surgeon, who was passing the mine as the shots were fired. After examining the men shot down, Dr. Howell telephoned for ambulances and treated the victims.

Dr. Howell said that two men were unloading sand at the mine while three guards stood by. A large crowd, apparently composed of strikers and sympathizers, was gathered near them.

He did not hear what passed between the two groups, but suddenly, Dr. Howell said, the guards fired into the crowd.

The eight men fell and the surgeon leaped from his car and ran to them. Shaffer already was dead.

One of the men badly wounded was shot in the chest and the other in the abdomen.

LONDON, Ky., June 27. (AP)—After arresting five men today in connection with the case, Sheriff Barve Steele and a posse led London with a "district warrant" and the intention of "cleaning up" a New Salem neighborhood where a mountain preacher was slain and a posse routed yesterday.

The warrant was issued by Circuit Judge William Lewis, authorizing the sheriff to arrest anyone in the section whom he had reason to believe may have had any connection with the shooting yesterday. Officers said they expected a number of other arrests.

The five men arrested today were Jack Philpot, Lowell Hubbard, Ernest Hubbard, Elmer Gray and Delbert Bowling.

They were held under peace bonds for further investigation of yesterday's shooting in which a stray bullet cost the life of Rev. Granville Walker, 53, and caused 25 national guardsmen to be called out for a few hours.

Theater Bombed.
MERIDIAN, Miss., June 27. (AP)—A dynamite blast under the combination of the safe in the Stanger-Temple theater here early today wrecked the safe and caused approximately $1,000 damage in the theater itself.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., June 27. (AP)—Physicians Sunday martyred at the feet of Vance Young, 18-year-old Charlotte, N. C., youth, who drove an automobile from Greenville, S. C., to Knoxville with his neck broken.

Last Tuesday Young drove into shallow water while swimming in a pool at Greenville. He was pulled from the water unconscious, but soon revived.

The next day he drove to Knoxville, and becoming ill, went to a doctor. An X-ray disclosed a fracture through the bone of the fifth cervical vertebrae, the entire front portion being broken and crushed. He is improving.

GARDENSHIRE TO DROP ANTI-SMITH CAMPAIGN

Tennessee Says Former Governor No Longer Real Menace.

CHICAGO, June 27. (AP)—It appealing to Judge J. M. Gardenshire that Alfred E. Smith is "no longer a real menace" and that Governor Roosevelt probably will be nominated on the first ballot, the Tennessee delegate decided today "in the interest of harmony" to withhold from the convention his anti-Smith resolution.

Gardenshire announced at Nashville last week that he planned to ask the convention to deny the former New York governor the privilege of speaking at the floor and to rule him ineligible to be voted on as a presidential candidate unless Smith promised to support whatever man is nominated.

While believing his resolution unnecessary at this time, Gardenshire declared that "I stand ready to sponsor it if the exigency requiring it should arise."

Former Governor Benton McMillin, who successfully managed Roosevelt's pre-convention campaign in Tennessee, and Smith came face to face in a crowded hallway at the Congress hotel, introduced through the crowd, introduced himself to Smith and expressed pleasure at meeting him. "Glad to meet you again," responded Smith and passed along.

McMillin continued on his way to Roosevelt headquarters, where he reported "for Roosevelt, conditions are perfect in Tennessee, and so far as I can see from circulating with the delegates generally, his prospects are good throughout the Union."

Edwards spoke Monday night at Dublin and will speak again at 11 o'clock this morning at Sandersville, at 5 o'clock this afternoon at Louisville and at 8 o'clock tonight at Athens. He also will speak at Athens on Wednesday night, at Jefferson Thursday morning and at Lawrenceville Friday night.
